

METHOD FOR REDUCING TUNGSTEN FILM ROUGHNESS AND IMPROVING STEP COVERAGE

ABSTRACT

A tungsten nucleation film is formed on a surface of a semiconductor substrate by alternatively providing to that surface, reducing gases and tungsten-containing gases. Each cycle of the method provides for one or more monolayers of the tungsten film. The film is conformal and has improved step coverage, even for a high aspect ratio contact hole.